

HINTS FOR DESCRIBING A PICTURE*An airplane hitting a building

In this picture we can see an accident that has taken place at one of the airports. There is an airplane which has hit a building and its nose has stuck inside. It looks like a turbo prop twin.

Around the aircraft there are airport vehicles including a fire truck and an ambulance. There is neither open flame nor smoke but we see that the firefighters have used fire foam.

It looks like a serious accident and it might have happened due to a pilots' mistake during taxiing. It also could have been a brake failure.

There are no signs of passengers evacuating from the rear passenger doors of the aircraft so we can suppose that this was not a passenger flight. I also hope that the pilots did not get injured.
